

Three Worlds

Not yet ready to join the world
Too weak to remain in the safe darkness of her world
Hesitant parents who accede to doctor's decision
As latexed hands reach into her world
Ending it so that she may live in another.

Strong enough to breathe on her own
A fragile girl weighing less than a bag of flour
Who grows into a strong willed and spirited child.
An independent thinker always asking why,
A sensitive child walking with her aging Papou
Weeping for a dying dragonfly.
The challenge of guiding her in a mixed up world
And the joy of the young woman she has become.

Two hearts beat with overwhelming pride,
The hesitant parents now lovingly send her to another world
Of knowledge, wisdom and adventure.
Wishing her much love, joy and God speed
And blessings of His love and guidance
So very proud of all that she has accomplished
And to call her our daughter.
